

Today PAP seeks talent to its English language financial and economic newswire

The Polish Press Agency (PAP) is hiring individuals full or part-time with fantastic English skills (and Polish!) plus a no-fear approach to learning the basics of finance and economics for its English language financial newswire.

PAP Market Insider publishes a real-time English-language financial newswire dedicated for market professionals and offering the information on economics, policy, corporate news and more necessary for investment decisions. With Poland's largest financial service (PAP Serwis Ekonomiczny) and the rest of PAP in support and with its own team of dedicated journalists, editors and support staff, PAP Market Insider aims to be both the most comprehensive source of news and reference on Polish markets and the top location for exclusive market-moving news.

The best candidates will have fluent English with a command of market, business & economic vocabulary, a curiosity for how money moves in this world and perhaps a hidden desire to be where it's all happening, near the front lines of journalism.

The right talent can launch a great career in journalism; most everyone can have fun, learn how the world works and gain language skills they didn't even know they were missing.

PAP offers a standard labor contract with benefits and can hire full-time or part-time. Hours can be flexible, but some select early morning hours are required. Most importantly, PAP offers the support and camaraderie of a tight-knit small team.

Candidates should put career materials and/or a brief introduction to candidates@pap.pl with an ALL CAPS subject line: PAP MARKET INSIDER - FINANCIAL JOURNALISM POSTS
